

POLICEMAN A SAVAGE BRUTE

Clubs Man and Leaves Him to Crawl in Streets Suffering Agony.

TWO HOURS AT STATION

John Haggerty Was Detained, 10:4 Until After 6 A. M. Without Getting Medical Aid.

Crawling painfully about the streets for an hour early this morning looking for aid, deserted by the policeman who had clubbed him almost into helplessness, John Haggerty, of No. 137 East One Hundred and Second street, reached the East One Hundred and Fourth street police station at 4 o'clock, only to be held there without surgical help until after 6 o'clock.

Then Haggerty was taken to Harlem Hospital, where it was found that his ankle was sprained badly and his body black and blue. The police returns to Headquarters state that Haggerty was assaulted at 3 o'clock by an unidentified patrolman at One Hundred and Eleventh street and Lexington avenue.

Haggerty, when he was able to tell his story at the hospital, said that the station-house police were trying to shield the culprit, as the assault was committed at One Hundredth street, and not eleven blocks above, as the returns said.

"I was standing there arguing with a friend at 3 o'clock," he said. "We got to quarrelling and a policeman ran up and began clubbing me. I fell under his furious blows and rolled to the gutter, spraining my ankle. I cried out that my leg was broken."

"Both my companion and the policeman hurried away. For an hour I crawled about in terrible pain. Then I got to the station-house. I was kept there until 6:10 A. M., suffering awfully."

Sergeant Casey, who was in charge of the East One Hundred and Fourth street station, said that Haggerty's story would be investigated. He denied that the police were trying to shield the offending policeman, and said that Haggerty would have a chance to try to identify his assailant.

The first intimation of what had happened to Haggerty reached his family at 10 o'clock this morning, when the thirteen-year-old son of Policeman Grimes, of the East One Hundred and Fourth street station, called. The boy said that he had been instructed by his father to tell Mrs. Haggerty that her husband had fallen from a street car and broken his leg.

Mrs. Haggerty went to the hospital, but was not allowed to see her husband. Her son Frank, after inquiry at One Hundred and Second street and Lexington avenue, is convinced that his father was the victim of a police assault. He says he was told so by a policeman on post there, but that the policeman would not give him more definite information.

The interest in the case of Policeman Grimes, who is charged with the assault, has not been explained. At the station-house all information is withheld.

ENTERTAINS A BURGLAR.

A Syracuse Man Makes a Robber Pay for Crookery He Broke.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Charles Samuels, of South Salina street, was awakened by the falling of dishes on the floor, and jumping up he saw a man in the dim light in the dining-room. He called to the man to throw up his hands, and the latter, thinking he had a revolver, obeyed.

Mr. Samuels' wife turned on the light and Mr. Samuels marched his man to the kitchen. There he asked him to have a seat and lighted his pipe. He gave the burglar a cigar, and they discussed the matter. The burglar complimented Mr. Samuels on his nerve and that of his wife.

After a couple of hours' talk Mr. Samuels grew tired of trying to hold the man until morning. He offered to pay for the crockery that had been broken, and this was done. He then went on his way, saying that he was sorry that he had caused so much trouble.

HARRISON WRITES HIS BIOGRAPHY.

CHICAGO'S MAYOR AT WORK ON HIS LIFE HISTORY.

Says It Will Not Be Published Until Twenty Years After His Death.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Mayor Harrison is at work on an autobiography. "I'll tell you," said the Mayor, when asked about his new literary task to-day. "I'm not yet looking for a publisher. In fact, I propose to stick to the usual rule in regard to publishing memoirs. They will appear twenty years after my death. Writing them? Oh, yes, I am writing them all right, and they are vastly interesting, chiefly for the reason that they deal mainly with other folks' affairs."

"Yes, there are some things in them that have not been in my published messages—some things in fact, that I don't care to exploit till long after I am dead and forever safe from political attacks. Nothing that I am ashamed of, though. The book will be all facts—no bouquets for anybody, not even for myself. It is not all facts I'd publish it now. No, the book won't roast anybody. It's going to be all facts, and you know facts speak for themselves."

Mr. Vanderbilt will pass the winter at his country seat at Hyde Park, New York. The renting was done by DeBols & Knickerbocker.

"CHAMPAGNE CHARLIE" LOSES TWO "FIZZERS."

MISS CHRISTIE MACDONALD.

Peter F. Dailey Wanted All the Honors—Christie MacDonald and Will McConnell Have Left the Cast.

Some of the fizz in "Champagne Charlie" has fizzed out.

Peter F. Dailey is having troubles of his own up Boston way.

Two of his principals, Will McConnell and Christie MacDonald, who have been earning laughs and drawing principals' salaries, have resigned.

The why? "Is this?" "In 'Champagne Charlie' he enacted the part he performed in real life. He is said to have had lines which made people chuckle."

Dailey heard the gales and grew wroth. None but Peter should fill the mirth-provoking part of the programme.

He hid himself to Will. "The lines belong to me. I copyrighted them, and if they provoke unchained laughter, to me shall the plaudits come," Peter remarked in all the suavity of his manner.

Hence the dissension. Christie MacDonald, who is Mrs. William Winter Jefferson in private life, is also a dissenter. She feels the lack of public light. She hasn't been featured as a woman with her reputation should be. Besides, she is related to the immortal Joseph by marriage. No livelihood in the background for her. She says Peter wants all the prominence.

"No starring honors for anybody one but Peter Dailey," says Peter Dailey, with a Peter Dailey sangfroid.

So Miss MacDonald, too, left the cast. It is said. And Peter Dailey mourns in silence.

WIFE CHARGES PIE AND BIGAMY.

DOESN'T KNOW WHETHER SHE IS NO. 2, 3 OR 4.

Augustus Drewery Has a Lot to Answer For When He Gets Out of Jail.

Among the grievances which Mrs. Augustus M. Drewery schedules against her husband are his unwillingness to earn a living for her, his proneness to lie and steal, his fondness for pie, his threats to kill her and a probability that he is a bigamist.

Augustus is now serving a three months' term in the penitentiary for the theft of a gold watch from his sister-in-law, and when he is released he will have to face an indictment for bigamy as well as an irate woman's tongue-lashing.

Mrs. Drewery, or Miss Florence Isabel Goldin, as she prefers to be called, lives with her sister at No. 316 Van Buren street, Brooklyn. She says that she married Drewery last spring after a brief and ardent courtship.

After marriage she found that the tales her husband had told her regarding his income and the money he had in the bank were untrue, and when he began stealing her jewelry, his sister's furniture and her sister's belongings she left him and did not cry when he was sent to the penitentiary.

Since then she has heard of previous matrimonial exploits on the part of Drewery, and she is uncertain whether she is No. 2 or No. 3. One of his wives was Miss Emma Nell, of No. 103 Palmetto street. She secured a divorce a few days ago.

PASTOR SHOT AT IN HIS PULPIT.

BULLET GRAZES HIS HEAD AS HE IS PREACHING.

Noisy Young Man in Congregation Fired After Being Told to Leave the Church.

OWINGSVILLE, Ky., Sept. 30.—In Kimball Springs Church, near this city, the usual Sunday service was being held yesterday, and while the pastor, B. J. Ross, who resides in this city, was delivering his sermon, a disturbance was raised by "Bud" Carmichael, a young man of the neighborhood.

The pastor and congregation at first paid no attention to the actions of the fellow, but he became so noisy and offensive that Elder Ross finally requested some one of the assembly to escort the young man outside of the building and have him remain there.

Carmichael refused to go, and, rising to his feet, before hands could be laid on him, fired a shot into the air.

Fortunately his aim was bad and the pastor escaped injury, although the ball passed within a few inches of his head.

Carmichael was then overpowered, brought to this place and lodged in jail. There is considerable feeling among the members of the pastor's congregation, but it is believed that any violence will be attempted.

Two Men Wreck a Saloon With an Axe.

NICHOLAS Glyn, twenty-three years old, of No. 152 Newark avenue, and Thomas O'Rourke, twenty-three years old, of No. 247 Warren street, both of Jersey City, figured in Police Judge Hoffman's trial to-day as imitators of Carrie Nation.

They called at Samuel Freedman's saloon, No. 54 York street, Jersey City, at 1 o'clock this morning and demanded drinks. The bartender refused to serve them because they were drunk.

Thereupon the two men went into the back yard, got an axe, returned to the saloon, knocked the bartender down with their fists and then used the axe on all the fixtures in sight.

They smashed every bottle they could reach. They chopped up the bar. They smashed the mirror and then hurled bottles in all directions.

Proprietor Freedman tried to interfere, but he was promptly knocked out. With the axe they broke all the chairs and wrecked the chandeliers. They cracked the window panes. They ripped open the floor and they cracked beer barrels.

The awful racket and the cries of Freedman attracted Policemen Chinery who, with the aid of his revolver, subdued the furious smashers.

RICHES WAITED; SHE DIED PAUPER

$40,000 FORTUNE SOUGHT HER EIGHT YEARS.

While Mary Matthias Was Dying in Almshouse, New York Bankers Were Making Vain Search.

For eight years Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., of No. 49 Wall street, have had $40,000 for which they were seeking the owner. The money was left by Rudolph Bach, a bookbinder, of Brooklyn, who died intestate in 1893. His property, which by law belonged to the next of kin, should have gone to his niece, but the bankers were unable to find her.

During the time that the executors of the estate have been looking for the niece she was an inmate of the almshouse at Wilkesbarre. She died a pauper a year ago and was buried in the Potter's Field.

The woman who died a pauper when a fortune was waiting for her was formerly Miss Mary Dalch, of Wilkesbarre. She was a village belle when she was a girl, and her marriage to Dr. William Minich, the leading physician of Wilkesbarre, was a fashionable event. He died thirty years ago and left her a fortune of $40,000.

His widow secured employment with Jacob Matthias at a roadhouse in the town of his birth and when he was found murdered in his bed she demanded a share of his estate. After a long legal battle she lost, and then, at the age of seventy-eight, she entered the almshouse and lived there until she died.

He died within a few days of the time she became a public charge. She was known as Mrs. Matthias and this change of name prevented the hunt for her being successful.

SCHOOL BESIEGED BY BULL.

Teacher and Scholars Kept Prisoners for Hours by Angry Animal.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 30.—An angry bull, tormented by mischievous boys in the district school at New Fairfield, kept the pretty teacher and all the scholars prisoners for several hours in the school-house.

The bull was grazing in a lot near the school. At recess some of the boys waved a red rag at him. The bull broke down the intervening fence. Boys, girls and teacher took refuge in the school-house and barred the door. The bull struck angrily at the doors and windows, shaking the building and breaking window panes. The teacher lifted the largest boy up to the trap-door into the attic, the rest were hauled up, and the remainder of the evening session was spent in that dark retreat. Anxious parents arrived and the bull was driven away.

POSSE PURSUES FRUIT THIEVES.

MANY SHOTS FIRED IN WILD JERSEY CHASE.

Fugitives in Wagon Unloaded Many Baskets and Thus Eluded Their Angry Pursuers.

Charles Powell, a farmer, discovered two men taking quinces from his orchard in Brookdale. He got his shotgun and with two farmhands pursued the thieves, who dived for a wagon they had in waiting.

They leaped into the vehicle and drove like mad toward Paterson, with Powell, his two men and a dozen other farmers who have suffered from fruit thieves in chase.

Several shots were fired after the two men and they returned the fire. The thieves, seeing that the pursuers were gaining, began to unload the wagon, throwing out basket after basket of peaches, apples, quinces, etc.

This lightened the load, and the thieves began to draw away from the angry farmers, some of whom continued the chase on horseback.

The thieves have a rendezvous in the dense woods between Brookdale and Passaic City. Fifty farmers armed with clubs and shotguns spent the day searching for them. A meeting of citizens is to be called soon to organize a vigilance committee.
